01 - Captains Table - QE II.jpg

Good capture of the classic look of this dining area. Strong Pictorial qualities, though a little more space under the foreground table would be good. Would be stronger as Travel if there were some people enjoying a meal in the picture.

02 - I Miracoli Accadono (Miracles Happen).jpg

Though a good portrait of the man, and we see the background clearly enough that we get a sense of place for Travel. It's good that the background is defocused so it doesn't compete with the portrait. The title gives no Travel info, though. My take is that it's okay to start a Travel (or Journalism, Nature) title with a clever quip or phrase, but it should be followed up with the needed factual info.

03 - Paris Twilight.jpg

Bold, graphic qualities as a Pictorial image. Though the Tower is centered, there is enough asymmetry in the foreground to keep the image from being static. Though a small part of the image, there is enough in the foreground to give a good sense of place for Travel. Bringing out more detail in the foreground would increase the sense of place, but at the risk of ruining the twilight mood.
